

I ask you please to not relax in any way the rules regarding cellular telephone usage aboard airborne aircraft. Cell phone users have demonstrated time and again that they are too rude, boorish, or stupid to consider that others around them do not wish to hear their inane personal conversations. In the close quarters of an aircraft, to allow such people, even a few, to use their cell phones, would contribute misery and suffering on thousands of travellers. I urge you not to allow cell phone usage on airborne flights.
